Presto goes mobile

Presto on smartphones puts premium entertainment in the palm of your hand

Presto today announced its premier movie and TV subscription streaming service has broadened its mobile device compatibility footprint, adding smartphones[^] to the service. Presto, which recently added Android tablets to its device list, can now be viewed on select iPhones and Android handsets, offering subscribers even more flexibility in how they view their favourite movies and TV shows on Presto.

From today, iPhone users can download the Presto app for free from Apple's App Store and Android handset users can download the Presto app from the Google Play Store or Samsung App Store, to access an unbelievable selection of 1000s of hours of ad-free movies and TV shows, with subscriptions starting at $9.99 per month.

The initial roll out of Presto to smartphones[^] includes iPhone 5C, 5S, 6 and 6 Plus as well select Android devices from Samsung, HTC, LG, Sony and ZTE, again increasing the number of ways users can enjoy Presto's premium entertainment streaming service.

Shaun James, Director of Presto and On Demand, said, "It's been just over a month since Presto TV landed on Android tablets and with today's announcement, we've massively increased the number of devices you can use to enjoy Presto. Presto subscribers can now enjoy our unbelievable movie and TV offering on their smartphones, allowing them to watch content when and where they want. Presto remains committed to ensuring users can access its online streaming service on as many devices as possible and we expect to make further announcements on even more devices soon."

For $9.99 a month Australians can subscribe to either Presto TV or Presto Movies or bundle both services for $14.99 a month with the Presto Entertainment bundle, with no ongoing commitment*
