Statement from Seven West Media on Paul Ramsay

Seven West Media today expressed sadness at the passing of their partner and friend Paul Ramsay.

Executive Chairman, Kerry Stokes AC, said: “Everyone at Seven West Media is saddened by the passing of our dear friend and colleague Paul Ramsay AO.

“For nearly 30 years, he guided the development of Prime Media as a partner with the Seven Network. During that period, he conducted his business with us as he lived his life. There was never a cross word or a raised voice. That’s a miracle in our business.

“His enthusiasm and zest for life was infectious

“He was a great builder and had a very big heart. He loved people and he loved life. His businesses were like families to him and he achieved amazing results.

“Over the past couple of decades, with his growing involvement in Ramsay Health Care, he was also a strong supporter of Telethon in Western Australia and a great contributor nationally.

“Personally, I have lost a colleague and a very dear friend. He has however left a legacy of treasured memories.”

Tim Worner, CEO of Seven West Media, said: “We all need a Paul Ramsay in our lives.

“Personally and here at Seven, we were blessed to have Paul and his influence over nearly everything we did.

“His joy of life and enthusiasm for everything to do with our business was an irresistible force. At the heart of the man was a genuine interest in people and a genuine desire to make the most of every moment. Paul leaves an irreplaceable imprint in our lives. He was a gem of a man. We will miss him very much.”
